Dear Mr. Frangipani:

I apologize for my lack of diligence in advising you as to the outcome of the trial held before the National Labor Relations Board, at which you appeared as an expert handwriting witness on behalf of my client.

Your testimony and credited evidentiary presentation to the Judge substantially assisted us in winning this case.

The best method I know of to thank you for your assistance is to continue referring such work to your organization, and our next case is being mailed to you under separate cover.

This office looks forward to a long and meaningful relationship with you.

Thank you again for your expert help.

Yours truly,

Chuck Ellman
